BURITI/MAURITIA FLEXUOSA

Sustainability profile

The Buriti (Mauritia flexuosa) is a type of palm tree that is native to various regions of Latin America. The Buriti palm tree is a tall and slender tree that can grow up to 35 meters and grows in the wetlands of the Amazon rainforest. Trees like buriti palms sequester carbon dioxide from the atmosphere, helping to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

We work with suppliers who are:

- Implementing responsible harvesting techniques (no deforestation)
- Preserving ecosystems and supporting local initiatives that prioritize the long-term health of buriti palm populations.
